This report makes reference to the following document:

D1: US 2001/029750 A1 (KOTLIAR IGOR K) 18 October 2001
(2001-10-18)

1.1 D1 is considered to be the prior art closest to the subject matter of the claims. D1 (the references in parentheses are to D1) discloses:

"device for preventing and extinguishing fires in a spatial area (hereinafter referred to as "target area") that is closed or can be divided into closed sections, said device having a buffer reservoir (112) in which oxygen-displacing gas is stored under high pressure, at least one supply line system (113) which, in each case, connects at least one discharge nozzle (114) to the buffer reservoir via a pressure relief valve, and a control device for controlling the pressure relief valve in order to introduce the oxygen-displacing gas into the target area (110) gradually as needed or suddenly in the case of a fire, wherein, in the target area, one or more inertization levels with a lower oxygen content relative to natural concentrations can be set, and wherein the buffer reservoir is in the form of a high pressure pipe with a compressive force of > 200 bar".

- 1.2 Thus the subject matter of claim 1 differs from the known device for preventing and extinguishing fires in that "the end sections (12) of the high pressure pipe (8) each have a connection (13) for a supply line system (4)".

- 1.3 The subject matter of claim 1 is therefore novel (PCT Article 33(2)).

- 2.1 The problem to be solved by the present invention can therefore be regarded as that of making it possible for the inert gas stored in the high pressure pipe to be introduced into the target area especially quickly in the case of a fire and for a fire to be extinguished as quickly and effectively as possible.

- 2.2 The solution to this problem as proposed in claim 1 of the present application involves an inventive step for the following reasons (PCT Article 33(3)): The problem is not mentioned in the closest prior art. Moreover, the prior art does not provide any information that would suggest the solution.

- 3.1 Claims 2 to 10 are dependent on claim 1 and
